THERE have already arrived in Washington enough members of Congress to ensure a quorum to-day. The session will be very brief unless the impeachment of the President is decided upon. It is stated that the Judiciary Committee will report in favor of impeachment and urge Congress to proceed at once with that business.

THE conviction of Surratt may be looked for with certainty, as the evidence against him has been of a very positive character. The examination of Dr. M'Millan was resumed yesterday, and much more important testimony was obtained by the prosecution. The latter will probably close to-day and the defence open.

THE report of the presence of cholera as an epidemic in Sicily has been confirmed by advices received at Washington. From thirty to forty deaths are reported daily at Gorgenti, a town of only two thousand inhabitants, while in other sections the disease prevails to an alarming degree.

WE have received at this office a private letter from Leavenworth, Kansas, in which it is stated that the rumor of Gen. Custar's defeat and death prevailed in that city, and was fully credited.

IN the approaching short session of Congress the Republicans, notwithstanding the absence of many members, will have a clear two-thirds vote in both Houses.

THE Southern mail service has been restored, and the same facilities for communication with all parts of the South now exist as previous to the rebellion.

SIXTY-NINE fires occurred in Chicago in June, involving a loss on insurance companies of $118,000.

MANY of the streets of New Orleans are being repaved with the Nicolson pavement.

OPEN air preaching has been inaugurated in New York and Chicago.

U. S. COMMISSIONER BECKWITH HONORED—THE PRIZE DISTRIBUTION.

PARIS, July 1.—The American Commissioner, Mr. Beckwith, has been made an officer of the Legion of Honor.

PARIS, July 1.—There was a very grand ceremony at the distribution of the Exhibition prizes to-day. Seventeen thousand persons, including representatives of every nation were present. In front of the throne were the members of the Diplomatic Corps dressed in uniform. The galleries were filled. In the east end of the building was placed an orchestra of twelve hundred musicians, with an organ and bells on the roof. The building was bright with streamers of every color. The nave is surrounded with an ample parterre of natural flowers, growing as in a garden. The galleries were hung with flags, showing the nations which contributed to the exhibition. In the centre, on ten pedestals, there were shown the best specimens of ten groups, in which all the articles were divided.

The French Minister of State was present, with the Legislative Chambers, seated near the throne. The Lord Mayor of London and several Aldermen were present.

Napoleon's throne was guarded by a detachment of guards.

At ten minutes before two o'clock in the afternoon a roll of drums announced the approach of the imperial cortege, preceded by squadrons of dragoons and cent gardes and trumpeters. The Imperial party were conveyed in six carriages, each drawn by four horses. Royal outriders came on in advance of the carriage in which the Emperor was seated. This carriage, drawn by eight horses, contained the Emperor, Empress, Prince Imperial, Prince Napoleon, and his sons.

There were thousands assembled around the Exhibition building, and the approach of the royal family was loudly cheered.

The Sultan of Turkey was present. His cortege was heralded by three carriages, containing Turkish officials of great distinction. His vehicle was drawn by eight horses, each led by several in livery. All the carriages were literally covered with gold, having been brought in from the Palace Versailles, where they have lain since the time of Louis XIV. On the Sultan's right hand sat his nephew and heir to the throne. In front of His Majesty was his son and second nephew. They received a warm welcome from the crowd. The Sultan saluted the people by passing his hand from his mouth to his feet. The ladies attached to the French Court were dressed in magnificent costumes. The officers of Napoleon's household, in full uniform, entered the building and took places behind the throne. Next came Napoleon, having the Sultan on his right. Empress Eugenie came next, followed by the Prince of Wales, Prince Imperial of France, Princess Royal of Prussia, Prince Humbert, of Italy, Princess Mathilde, Prince Napoleon, Princess Clotilde, Duchess Doste, Brother of the Tycoon, Prince Von Teck, and Duke of Cambridge. Napoleon took a seat on the throne in the centre of the group, having the Sultan on his right and Empress on his left. The Empress was dressed in a robe of white satin, trimmed with silver, and wore a heavy diamond necklace.

As the Imperial cortege entered the building, the orchestra, with full chorus, gave the Rossini Hymn to the Emperor, and accompaniments were sent forth from cannon and joy bells. The effect was exceedingly thrilling. The music was magnificent.

The Minister of State read to the Emperor the report of the juries on the successful exhibitors and the productions and objects exhibited by them.

At its conclusion, Napoleon rose from the throne, and in a loud, clear voice, said: Gentlemen—After an interval of twelve years, I come for the second time to distribute rewards to those who most distinguished themselves in those works which enrich nations, embellish life, and soften manners. The poets of antiquity sung praises of their great games, in which various nations assembled to contend with Greece for prizes in races and other sports. What would they say to-day were they present at these Olympic games of the whole world, in which the nations of Europe contend by force of intellect alone, and launch themselves forth simultaneously on an infinite career of progress towards an ideal which has been incessantly approached without ever being attained. From all parts of the earth have come representatives of science, arts and industry, who have hastened to vie with each other, and we may say, peoples and kings have both come to do honor to the efforts of labor and crown them by their presence with ideas of conciliation and peace. From competition of intelligence and sentiment of accord, the nations, in drawing near, learn to know and esteem each other. Hatreds are extinguished, and the truth becomes more evident that the prosperity of each country contributes to the prosperity of all. The exhibition of 1867 may justly be termed universal, for it unites elements of all riches. Side by side with the latest improvements in modern art appear the products of the remotest ages. So they represent at one and the same time the genius of all ages and nations. It is universal, for in addition to the marvels which luxury brings for a few, it displays also that demanded by the necessities for the many. The interests of the laboring classes were never aroused to more lively solicitude. The moral and material wants, conditions of life, a cheap rate of living, by the most productive combinations of association, have been objects of patient inquiries and serious study. Thus all improvements march forward. If science, by turning matters to account, liberates labor, to the cultivation of the mind, and the subduing of the vices which prevail over the vulgar passions and liberal humanity, let us congratulate ourselves, gentlemen, on having received among us the majority of the Sovereigns and Princes of Europe, and so many other distinguished visitors. Let us be proud of having shown France as she is. Great, prosperous and free. One must be destitute of all patriotic faith who doubts her greatness, and must close his eyes to evidence. He who denies her prosperity must have misunderstood our institutions, tolerant even to license, not to behold in them liberty. Foreigners have been able to appreciate this France, formerly disquieted, and causing uneasiness beyond her frontiers, is laborious and calm. Always fertile in generous ideas, she is turning her genius to most diverse marvels, never allowing herself to be enervated by material enjoyment. Attentive minds will have devined, notwithstanding the developments of wealth and enticements towards prosperity, the nation is always ready to vibrate as soon as the question of honor arises. But this noble susceptibility could not be the subject for alarm, for repose would let those who lived a short time among us carry home just opinions of the country. I feel persuaded the sentiments of esteem we entertain towards foreign nations, and our sincere desire to live at peace, will be reciprocated. I thank the Imperial Commissioners, members of the jury, and different committees, for intelligent zeal in the accomplishment of their tasks, and I thank, also, by name, the Prince Imperial, who, notwithstanding his tender age, I have been happy to associate in this great undertaking, of which he will retain a remembrance. I hope the exhibition of 1867 will mark a new era of harmony and Progress, assured providence blesses the efforts of all who, like us, desire to do good. I believe in the definitive triumph of the great principles of morality and justice, which, while satisfying all legitimate desires, are alone able to consolidate thrones, elevate nations, and ennoble humanity. (Loud cheering.)

After the speech the exhibitors who were to receive grand prizes marched to the front of the throne, each group separately, the first being fine arts. As each name was called, the recipient ascended the steps of the throne, and bowing to the Emperor and Empress, received from Napoleon's hand gold medals. These were passed, one by one, to Napoleon by Marshal Vaillant, until all the medals were given. Many of the recipients were called up again, and received decorations of the Legion of Honor, the same ceremony being gone through with as in the case of the delivery of the medals. Gold medals only were distributed by the Emperor.

Altogether there will be 18,500 recompenses to 60,000 exhibitors. There are sixty grand prizes, nine thousand gold, thirty-six hundred silver and five thousand bronze medals, and nine thousand honorable mentions.

In group eight the Emperor of Russia was awarded a gold medal for fine horses. In group ten, Napoleon was awarded a gold medal for model lodging house. Marshal Vaillant was about handing it to him, when the Emperor beckoned to the Prince Imperial, who came forward, took it from the Marshal's hand, and placed it in Napoleon's, amid loud cheers.

The only one with whom the Emperor shook hands was Mr. Hughes, the inventor of the printing telegraph.

Upon all the medals and decorations being distributed, the recipients resumed their seats. The Imperial cortege then left the throne and walked around the entire building, passing the various groups and occasionally stopping to examine trophies. Empress Eugenie evidently expected the Sultan would offer his arm, but he did not. There were no loud cheers until the Imperial party reached the American department, when the American Commissioners rose and gave three loud American hurrahs. There was also much cheering when the English department was reached. The Sultan wore his fez during the ceremony. He seemed confused. The Empress appeared delighted.

The Imperial cortege left the exhibition grounds in the same manner it arrived, with the exception that the Sultan's carriage preceded Napoleon's. Altogether it was probably the finest pageant Paris ever witnessed.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, July 2.—Denver papers publish a dispatch from General Sherman to Gen. Hancock on Indian matters, in which he says we must not remain on the defensive, but follow them up and attack them on all possible occasions. We must clean out all the Indians between the Platte and the Arkansas and then move against the hostile tribes in force beyond those rivers.

An Omaha dispatch says that Colonel Patrick, agent for the Northern Cheyennes, Arrapahoes and Ogrellalias Sioux, has just arrived from the North Platte, where he met Spotted Tail, Swift Bear, and several other chiefs, in council, with the view of gathering all peaceable Indians at one point to be subsisted by the Government. About 1,100 Indians were represented, and are now camped near North Platte. They profess friendship, and agree to remain in camp, subject to the Government, during the present hostilities. Big Mouth, with his band of Ogrellalias, Pawne Killer, with fifty lodges of Sioux, and other bands, including Red Cap and Dog Hand, who, with their bands, participated in the Fort Phil Kearney massacre, are all moving to join this camp, which will number about four thousand. Col. Patrick thinks the arrangements will be carried out in good faith, but that the public may not be misled, Red Cloud, the biggest Sioux Chief, and all the Cheyennes on Smoky Hill, are clamorous for war, so that hopes for early peace are not to be indulged.

Collections of American Coins.

A writer in the Boston Transcript, speaking of collections of American coins, says: "Some time during the administration of President Jackson, a present was received from the Imaum of Muscat, and our Government, wishing to make a proper return to that magnate, caused, amongst other things, a set of coins to be made for him, and the only dollar dies existing being those of 1804, a few pieces were struck from them, one of which was used as intended, one retained in the mint, and one found its way into a private cabinet. It may interest numismatics to know that the one sent to Muscat is no longer to be found. The enthusiasm with which coin collecting is pursued may be illustrated by stating the fact that a gentleman of New York city caused an investigation to be made in the palace of the Imaum in 1865, and learned that the dollar was not there, and had not been for a long time. Of the two others known, one is in the possession of Colonel M. J. Cohen, of Baltimore, and the other is in the well known Mickley collection. The last was obtained many years ago from the Bank of Pennsylvania, and is, no doubt, one of the genuine issues of 1804. The dollar of 1838 is rare, but instead of only eighteen, there must be at least one hundred, and probably many more, in cabinets at the present time. The dollar of 1802 is likewise rare, but instead of being rated at $300 to $500, every coin collector knows that $40 is a high price, and the last one sold, which was not in fine condition, only brought $11.50. It may be safely affirmed that no single collection contains a complete set of American coins, or even of the coins of the United States. A gentleman in Cambridge possesses the only perfect set of all the known dates and types of the United States gold coins, and the Mickley collection before alluded to, which is now in possession of the writer, probably contains the only perfect set of United States silver to be found together, and even this lacks the half dollar of 1804. Several collections comprise all the dates and leading types of United States copper coins, but no one can by any possibility contain all the varieties; several of the half cents—those of 1796, 1842 and 1847—have been sold by auction for upwards of $100 each, and some varieties of the cents are very valuable. Several collections of the regular mint coinage in copper could be mentioned, which are are probably worth more than $2,000 each. Some of our early coins are of the rudest description, while others, in elaborateness and appropriateness of design, and even in artistic execution, are greatly superior to anything that the mint has yet produced; indeed, if we were to judge by the coinage alone, we could but conclude that the arts of designing and die-sinking are, and have been, retrograding every day since the establishment of the mint.

Our Drinks.

Dr. Dio Lewis says: Green tea, black tea, coffee, chocolate, milk, cold water,—yellow skins, "all gone" stomachs, shaky nerves, irritable temper. All women fifty years old, who have habitually drank strong tea, show the same skin, teeth and nerves. Black tea is better, but chargeable with the same effects, in a milder form. Coffee produces congestion of the brain, palpitation and indigestion; but in the long run is less mischievous than either green or black tea. Chocolate is better, but tends to sluggishness of stomach and liver. Milk is still better, but must be used in moderation, or general dullness, with liver torpidity, will ensue. Milk drinking with our food is a mischievous practice. Billiousness and constipation are common results. Cold water is an excellent drink. I recommend it for persons of both sexes, of all ages, for the sick and well, for the weak and strong.

RENCOUNTER BETWEEN JUDGE FISHER AND COUNSELLOR BRADLEY.

WASHINGTON, July 2, 1867.

Judge Fisher presiding, though still unwell.

Dr. McMillan was re-called.

Mr. Bradley called the attention of the Court to some insulting remarks of the witness yesterday to Mr. Merrick.

The Court said that while there could have been no provocation or justification for the remarks of witness, he reminded the counsel of the remark of witness that he had never been cross-examined as in this case, and admonished counsel to adhere more closely to the rules of practice and avoid side remarks, or directing any remarks to the jury.

Dr. McMillan testified that Surratt told him he was at Montreal on the 1st day of the week of the assassination, and was summoned to Washington, by Booth, by letter. Surratt also told me that a day or two after the assassination he was at St. Albans, and the train being late, he, Surratt, strolled through the town, and went to a hotel for breakfast; that while sitting at the table he saw a great deal of excitement among those sitting at it; asked his neighbor what all the excitement was about, and he said, "Don't you know President Lincoln has been assassinated?" The prisoner said, "The story is too good to be true." The man showed him a paper, and prisoner saw his own name mentioned. That was the last of his breakfast. He left the table, and at the moment a man came in and said Surratt's handkerchief had been found. Prisoner then felt for his handkerchief and found he had lost it, and made himself scarce. He went to Canada, and stopped at the house of Mr. Porterfield, Confederate agent, until the detectives searched for him, and admonished him to leave. Surratt afterwards described to me how he got away from Mr. Porterfield's. Two carriages were brought to the house, and Surratt was placed in one, and one man, dressed like him, in the other, and were driven in different ways. Surratt was driven to the foot of the Island, where he crossed the Saint Lawrence, and was piloted by a boy to a small town called St. Labers. He said he staid there some two weeks, in the house of a priest named Chas. Bouche. He told me one day, the priest being absent, he was lying on a sofa in the priest's bedroom, and between the room and the sitting room was a place for a stove, and under the stove was trap door, and a female servant, being desirous of seeing who the priest was concealing, put her head above the trap door, and Surratt frightened her off. The rumor got out that the priest was keeping a woman in his room. The priest told Surratt he could conceal him no longer. Surratt went to Montreal and was concealed by the priest La Pierre in a dark room, and never left it except late at night to take a stroll on shipboard. The prisoner's conduct and appearance was gentlemanly, but he was very nervous when any one would come behind him. On the evening before landing at Londonderry, between eleven and twelve o'clock, I was called out and passed the prisoner standing on what I called after square. He was all dressed, ready to go ashore. Had previously asked my advice about landing and would give him no advice. Said he would go on to Liverpool. I was therefore surprised to see an apparent intention of landing at Londonderry. After some conversation I told him he had been telling me a good deal and I said I expressed doubts of his travelling under his correct name. Asked him to give me his right name. He looked around and whispered in my ear, my name is Surratt. He went ashore twenty-five or thirty minutes afterwards. Before going ashore, prisoner asked for a drink and I awoke the bar keeper and we all three took a drink. It is the custom in England and on board ships for the bar keepers to help a customer to the drink asked for, and not to place the decanter before him; but in this case the bar-keeper put the bottle up, and Surratt poured out and drank half a tumbler of raw brandy. I then treated, and the bar-keeper treated, and Surratt at all times took the same quantity. The prisoner then landed, and the ship went on to Liverpool direct.

After the examination of McMillan was concluded he was cross-examined at length by Mr. Merrick: I do not remember of any date Surratt gave me except on two occasions, when he said he was in Richmond a week before it fell, and in Washington on the day of the assassination. He merely told me the abduction plan and failed. There are no circumstances that could I fix the time when the plan of abduction failed. Surratt told me he was in Richmond and was in Montreal the week of the assassination, and he received a letter from Booth while in Montreal, directing him to return to Washington; that it had been necessary to change their plan, and act promptly. He did not tell me what change of plan the letter referred to. He left immediately afterwards. Said he reached Elmira Thursday before the assassination. He said he telegraphed from Elmira to Booth at New York, to know if he (Booth) had gone to Washington. He did not say whether he went further than Elmira or not. All I remember his saying about St. Albans was he was there a few days after the assassination. The prisoner told me all I have related, but never told me anything connected with the incidents of the assassination in Washington, nor did he ever say he was in Washington on the day of the assassination. Witness was summoned here by the Marshal of Chicago; was not summoned before the Committee. I went to the house of Representatives one day with a friend and was introduced to Gen Boutwell who asked me to testify before the Judiciary Committee, and I consented. I have said if any one was entitled to a reward for Surratt's arrest, I was entitled to it. I have stated that in this city. I never intended to claim the reward; never told any one Surratt was in Elmira on the morning of April 14th, and did not know of the assassination until the morning after. I never said Surratt first learned of the assassination in New York, and immediately went to Canada. Never said Surratt had no connection with the assassination, and I only regarded him as a political offender, and would therefore aid him. I never stated the plan to abduct the President was an individual enterprise of Booth's. I never said anything contrary to what I have said on this stand. I have said the prisoner and Booth had planned the abduction, and expended $10,000.

After recess, Paymaster Barton, of the United States steamer Swatara, testified to facts relative to the voyage of Surratt from Egypt to America.

Captain William M. Wermerskirch testified concerning the arrest of Mrs. Surratt and Payne.

Marshal Gooding, of the District of Columbia, testified to the receipt of prisoner in custody when landed at the Navy Yard.

James Walker, colored, porter at the Pennsylvania Hotel, identified Surratt as a frequent visitor to Atzerott.

Benjamin St. Marie testified that in 1866 he was in the Papal States at Valetra, about forty miles from Rome. Was a soldier of the Papal Army, and in the Ninth Company. They were called Papal Zouaves. [The dress worn by Surratt exhibited.] That is the dress worn by the Zouaves. I saw the prisoner there. I knew him. I think it was on the 14th or 15th of June, 1866, I saw the prisoner. He again came to my quarters with two Zouaves, named Dibart and Labon, and we four took a walk. We took the road to Naples. Had some conversation at that time, and I was occasionally speaking to my companions in French and Surratt in English. I asked him how he got from Washington. He said he got away on the night of the assassination, and said he was so disguised no one could recognize him as an Englishman. I then went to Malta. Did not see him, but afterwards saw him on the Swatara. No cross-examination.

Judge Fisher said as it was a very oppressive day, it would probably be well to take a recess now.

The defense asked when the prosecution would close their testimony, that they might know what to do with the witnesses for the defense.

Mr. Carrington said they would probably close to-morrow, but was not certain.

Adjourned till to-morrow.

RENCOUNTER BETWEEN JUDGE FISHER AND COUNSELLOR BRADLEY.

To-day, after the adjournment of the Criminal Court, as Mr. Bradley was passing out of the Court-room, he met Judge Fisher in the hall and some words passed between them in reference to a ruling of the Judge. The Washington Evening Express, giving an account of the difficulty, remarks that harsh language was used and Mr. Bradley informed the Judge if he were not sick, he would thrash him. Judge Fisher replied he did not claim immunity from the threatened castigation on account of illness. The combatants were about to came to close quarters, when Deputy Marshal Phillips placed himself between them and endeavored to force the Judge into the Marshal's room, when Joseph H. Bradley, Jr., who was sitting at the desk in the court room talking to Surratt, hearing the difficulty, hastened to the rescue. Meanwhile, Judge Fisher had been forced into the Marshal's room, but before the door was closed Mr. Bradley, Jr., made his appearance and Judge Fisher turned and grappled him. The parties were separated and Judge Fisher locked in the Marshal's room. Mr. Bradley, Sr., returned to the Court room and Judge Carter, who was on the bench, said the difficulty must cease. Mr. Bradley tried to explain to Judge Carter, while the Marshal was attempting to calm Judge Fisher, who was eventually induced to go to his home in Georgetown. The difficulty created much excitement, and quite a crowd was gathered about the court room.

Sharp Practice.

Some two weeks since a young woman giving her name as Margaret Taylor, about sixteen years of age, came to the house of Edward Taylor, of Pitt township, about eleven o'clock at night, stating that she wanted to go to the house of Henry Taylor, her uncle. She said she had been employed in the family of Mr. Moss, of Perryopolis, Fayette county, and that the day before her arrival there her step-mother came to Mr. Moss and told her that her little sister was lying very ill at Mr. Henry Taylor's and requested her to go and see her. On this representation Mr. Edward Taylor took her in for the night, and the next morning made inquiry for Henry Taylor, but could hear of no such man in the neighborhood. However, as the girl had conducted herself very properly, and appeared to be respectable and honest, he allowed her to remain in his house, thinking that she would be able to find the man she was looking for. She accordingly remained with him until Sunday, having came there on Tuesday night previous, and Sunday morning, expressing a desire to return to Perryopolis, Mr. Taylor very kindly brought her to the depot of the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Railroad, and secured her passage on the church train to West Newton, from where she said she could walk to Perryopolis. After seeing her safely on board the train, Mr. Taylor returned home and found his wife searching for some articles of wearing apparel, which she intended using, but the search was in vain. Her failure to find the article she was looking for aroused a suspicion against their late visitor, and induced her to make an examination of her goods, chattles, and effects in general, upon which she discovered that several articles of valuable jewelry had disappeared, and also two or three valuable dresses.

Miss Margaret Taylor has not since been heard of, and it is not at all probable ever will be under that name.

Assault and Battery Cases.

Thomas Barrett made information before Alderman Lynch, against the conductor of car No. 12, Birmingham Passenger Railway, charging him with assault and battery. He alleges that he got on the car for the purpose of coming across the river, and that he was rudely seized by the conductor and ejected from the car, and that he lost his hat in the scuffle and was compelled to go home without it. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the conductor.

John Rafferty appeared before the same officer and made information against J. Toony for assault and battery, which he alleges was committed upon him by Toony, without cause or provocation. He says he was in Toony's house and was behaving in an orderly manner, when Toony came in and pushed him out of the door, causing him to fall upon the pavement, and that he kicked him several times after he had fallen. The defendant was arrested and the case settled by the parties before the hearing.

John McIntyre charges Thomas Scott with assault and battery. He alleges in his information, before Alderman Lynch, that the defendant Scott carelessly drove a horse and cart over his son who was in the street. The parties reside in Mattocks alley, Fourth Ward. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Scott.

Martin Jennings alleges that C. Evans committed an assault and battery upon him, by striking him on the head with his fist and knocking him down. Alderman Lynch, before whom he made the information, issued a warrant for Evans.

Trouble in the Royal Family.

Mrs. Emma Royal came before Alderman McMasters, yesterday, and made information against Jacob Royal, her husband, charging him with assault and battery. The parties reside at No. 36 Tunnell street. She says they have been married about two years, and alleges that she has been shamefully treated by her husband ever since that time, and reports a series of outrages the most infamous would scarcely be guilty of, consigning himself and her to a depth of degradation far beneath anything the human mind can conceive. If her statement be true—and we have no reason to doubt it, only from the enormity of the charges—he is unworthy to be called a man, and

"Would cheat the living, rob the dead,
Steal from the orphan its crust of bread;
Would plunder the palace of the king alone,
And strip the plumes from an angel's wings."

The alleged assault and battery was committed on Saturday last, and was so severe that the deponent was confined to her bed until yesterday. Monday, as she states, the husband in a rage, because she was still disabled, broke up the furniture of the house. The accused was arrested, and in default of five hundred dollars bail was committed for a further hearing on Friday.

Who Stole Our Hat?

It happens sometimes that persons take other's hats by mistake, but we believe these mistakes are occasionally made "on purpose." Especially do we believe this to have been the case yesterday, when somebody took our hat from the clerk's desk in the Quarter Sessions Court room. Judging from the size (7⅝) of a hat left, which did not seem to be claimed by any one, the individual who made the "mistake," finding himself "fitted," (our's being 7¼) is satisfied with the "exchange" of an inferior for a superior article, and has concluded to thus appropriate to himself property not his own. This is larceny in the same sense as in the case of a person finding a pocket book and forgetting to make the fact known, or to inquire for the owner. The "tile" left in exchange we intend placing on exhibition as belonging to one of the fraternity who make a practice of exchanging their own for other hats.

Commendable.

The efforts of Managers Leak and Sefton, of the Opera House, to render their entertainments interesting, especially in the representation of the "Naiad Queen," are highly laudable and of a praiseworthy character, not the least evidence of which is the liberal patronage they are enjoying. This gorgeous spectacle was presented last night to a very commendatory audience, with charming effect, and we are informed will be repeated this evening, and in the afternoon and evening of the "Fourth." The scenery is truly magnificent, and the closing scene superbly grand, and like the grand march of the "Naiads," should be seen to be appreciated. Annie and Joe Sefton take their farewell benefits on Friday and Saturday nights respectively, when we may expect quite a treat, as something "rare, rich and racy" is in preparation for the occasions.

Water Pipe Burst.

Tuesday morning, in East Birmingham, whilst some men were engaged in repairing a sewer on Carson street, the water main burst, injuring several of the workmen and damaging the street. The earth had been excavated from the pipe, and when it gave way, the water burst out with great force causing the sewer to cave in and flooding the street. Three men engaged in working at the sewer were unable to escape in time, and were caught by the loosened earth, and one of them, James Mohan, covered to the neck, in which position he remained for a considerable time. When extricated, he was found to be quite severely injured in the back and legs. The others sustained injuries, but less severe. The damage caused to the street and sewer by the "burst" is rather extensive, and it will require several days' labor to repair it.

For Uniontown.—Doubtless thousands of our citizens will visit Uniontown to-morrow, to be present at the laying of the corner stone of the soldiers' monument of Fayette county. With commendable liberality, the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Railroad Company has determined to issue excursion tickets, not only to that town, but to all points on their road, which will be good up till the night of the day following. An extra train will leave the depot to-morrow morning at five o'clock.

Proceedings of a Meeting Held in McClure Township to Remonstrate Against the Proposed Powder Magazine.

MESSRS. EDITORS: As you did not have a reporter in attendance at the important meeting held in McClure township on Monday evening, I will furnish you with a faithful report of the conclave. By actual count, made with but little difficulty, I found that the large number of six persons, with powder on the brain, had assembled. The "resolutionizer" R. H. Kerr, was on hand and nominated H. S. Fleming, Esq., as President. On taking the Chair the President burst forth in a neat and expressive speech in which he said as follows: "The next thing in order is the election of Secretary." The inevitable Kerr was ready to nominate, and on his motion Mr. J. Pyatte was chosen, but he declined, as he had promised his wife not to stay long at the meeting. Mr. Kerr, however, assured him that things were all cut and dry for an early adjournment, and Mr. Pyatte reluctantly assumed the honor. The meeting was now ready for business, and Mr. Kerr read the call as published by "all the people," and wisely remarked that as "all the people," were not present (there being only six in the room, three of whom had signed Mr. Kirk's petition,) it would be advisable to adjourn to meet next Thursday evening at the same place, and that due notice be given by hand bills and publication in the city press. He made such a motion, which was carried unanimously. It was afterwards discovered that the time specified for the adjourned meeting was the evening of the "glorious 4th," but Mr. Kerr, with his usual sagacity, volunteered to get over the difficulty and call the meeting at a proper time.

When we bear in mind the fact that this meeting had been urged for some time by the Post, and was noticed in three of our daily papers, and that great personal exertions were put forth by interested individuals to have a large meeting, we must say, that in view of all these facts it reflects great credit on the citizens of McClure township, that they could not be got together to do the dirty work of an overgrown monopoly.

We therefore congratulate all interested in powder on the prospect of competiture and consequent reduction of prices far below the present rate of blasting powder, the benefit of which will, no doubt, soon be felt by every consumer of coal. CITIZEN.

Division "42" Sons of Temperance.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Yesterday's Republic contained a scurrilous and wretched attack on the members of Pittsburgh Division No. 42, Sons of Temperance, a social association that will compare favorably with any other society in the city in respect to the standing, respectability, influence, and moral worth of the ladies and gentlemen composing its membership.

The article is so malignant and stupid, that it would elicit no reply only from the fact that we desire to defend the author's nearest and dearest kindred from the public contempt and ridicule, which he attempts to heap upon their devoted heads.

It will appear astonishing that any local editor would so foully libel, defame, and slander near and dear relatives, all members of No. 42, and whose high social and moral standing in the community, not even he can doubt.

It is not necessary to point out his wilful misrepresentations, for all persons are fully aware of the noble and high aim of Division No. 42, and of the intelligence and respectability of its members. The writer of the Republic only lowers his own reputation by assailing such a praiseworthy and prosperous temperance association.

NO. 42 SON OF TEMPERANCE.

The Fourth.

To-morrow will be Independence day. Aside from the rare bills offered at our theatres and the grand balloon ascensions and other novel attractions at the Union Skating Park, in Allegheny city, the day will not be observed in any special manner. We have not a single military organization in the neighborhood, although nearly everybody has been a soldier in the ranks of the Union Army, and consequently cannot be furnished with a display of "neatly trimmed musketry." There is, however, enough patriotism in our citizens to appropriately observe the greatest of all holidays, and we presume there will be no end to the powder sports of young America, and at night the usual pyrotechnic displays by the heads of families. At the Arsenal an exhibition of fire works may be looked for in the evening. We have not yet noticed the customary proclamation of the Mayor forbidding the powder manifestations so usual on the "Fourth," and presume his Honor means to allow the youthful portion of the community full sway on the occasion.

Pittsburgh Grain Elevator Company.

We are pleased to learn that this company has declared a cash dividend of three (3) per cent. from the net earnings of the last six months. We congratulate the stockholders, as well as the managers, upon the success this enterprise has met with, notwithstanding the doubts and fears frequently expressed as to its ever becoming a paying institution. It is now demonstrated beyond, we believe, a peradventure, that the investors may reasonably expect fair dividends on their shares from this time forward. It is one of the best, and by far the most imposing buildings of the kind in the United States, and the consumers of every description of grain in and about our two cities are greatly benefitted by its erection. We therefore chronicle its success with pleasure, and congratulate the friends of the enterprise upon the encouragement which has opened upon them.

Bad Heard of the Japanese.

A little boy of nine years, named Andrew Oatman, residing on Cherry alley, between Third and Fourth streets, having probably heard of the great feats performed by the Japanese, undertook yesterday afternoon to perform what he conceived to be a rival of the great feats performed by little "All Right," but met with a disastrous failure. In the alley there are two brick houses close together, with about two feet space between them, and the boy attempted to climb them by putting a hand and foot against each wall. He succeeded in elevating himself in this manner as far as the second story window, when he dropped, striking his head against a brick and cutting a severe gash across his forehead. The probability is that he won't attempt to climb that wall again, for a short time at least.

Took Degrees.

The Degree of A. B. was conferred upon the following students at the recent commencement exercises of the Western University:

Wm. McGrew Blackburn, Charles C. Montooth, John C. Newmyer, Robert C. Moore, John O. Petty, Wilkins Updyke, Thomas B. Kerr, Robert G. Young. The degree of B. Pn. on Howard Dunlap, E. D. Graff, Cyrus B. Hatch. The degree of A. M., in course, on George I. Whitney, John A. Wilson, Thos. T. Marshall, John H. McCandless. The degree of L. L. D. was conferred on Hon. Moses Hampton, President Judge of the District Court of Allegheny county.

Attempt to Shuffle Off.

Monday night J. W. Rotrock, arrested for drunkenness on the street, while confined in the tombs attempted to end his mortal existence by butting his head against the iron bars of the cell. He was discovered lying upon the floor bleeding freely from a cut on the back part of the head. He received proper attention, but renewed the attempt. Finally, becoming weak from loss of blood, and recovering from his intoxicated state, he became quiet and slept, and in the morning departed, having, apparently, abandoned his suicidal intentions.

Fire Works.

The stock of fire works found at the store of L. D. Dumett, No. 207 Liberty street, will be found equal in point of quality and selection to any found in the eastern cities. The pyrotechnics are of the most famous manufacture, and embrace every thing known in the line from the tiny cracker up to the immense Roman candle, pin wheel or rocket. The prices are very reasonable. A full stock of the rarest confectionaries, foreign fruits and nuts will also be found at this establishment. We bespeak for Mr. Dummett a large share of the public patronage.

Horses Stolen and Recovered.

On Saturday morning last, between one and two o'clock, two horses, valued at eight hundred dollars, were stolen from the stable of Joseph McKinley, in Bloomfield, Liberty township. Officer William Bowden, of Allegheny, obtained trace of the animals, and about ten o'clock Saturday night found them at the stable of Meyers Wild, in Allegheny, having been sold by a colored man to Mr. Wild for three hundred and seventy-five dollars. The horses were returned to Mr McKinley, but the colored man is unknown and seems likely to escape arrest.

Teachers Elected.—The School Directors of the First ward of the city have elected the following teachers for the next ensuing school year: Principal—George M. Monro. Grammar Department—Mary F. Eaton, Eliza Mason and Alice Patterson. Intermediate Department—Hannah J. Bell, Amanda McKinley and Bella Moffat. Primary Department—Carrie A. Carpenter, Emma J. Hemlup, Hattie Carter and Mary J. Cooper.

Terrible Threats.—Charles Kelly made oath before Alderman Lynch, charging Ann McGuire with surety of the peace. He alleges that the defendant threatened to take his life, and the lives of his family, and said she would tear his daughter limb from limb, and would burn his house: none of which she has done yet. However the Alderman issued a warrant for her arrest. The parties reside at Four Mile Run.

Malicious Mischief.—John Lewis, John Button and William Evans, were charged, on oath of John Mitchell, before Alderman Lynch, with malicious mischief. It appears that Mitchell keeps a grocery and feed store on Wylie street, and that the defendants destroyed a ton of flour and wheat placed in front of his store, by tearing open the sacks, and scattering it around the street. The parties were arrested and held for a hearing.

The Small Pox prevails to a somewhat alarming extent in some portions of the city and in several of the suburban districts.

The Report of the Auditors of the North Fayette township bounty fund is published on our fourth page.

To Radical.—We cannot publish your communication unless your name is furnished.

Safe for Sale.—A tip-top safe is offered for sale at No. 147 Wood street.

Fourth of July marvels.—Everybody and his wife, and the rest of mankind, seem to be provided for and expected at the marvelous exhibition to culminate at Union Skating Park, Allegheny, on the Fourth. All sorts of unique and grotesque comedy are embraced in the programme, to say nothing of the family of Balloons to be, that day on a rampage, or the nuptial party on its heavenward mission. All of the youngsters, and many of the oldsters, will be there to see what an institution the Fourth of July has come to be in these latter days.

LOTS FOR SALE IN TARENTUM, AND NEAR IT.—Tarentum is situated on the west bank of the Allegheny river, 21 miles above the City of Pittsburgh. Persons desirous of starting manufacturing establishments, such as rolling mills, woolen factories, paper mills, &c., would find the location, near the river or railroad, admirably suited for such purposes. Capitalists will be encouraged to purchase by moderate prices and easy terms, as it is intended that the superior advantages of the place—as to abundant supply of water, coal, limestone, &c., and railroad and river facilities—shall be liberally offered for manufacturing purposes generally. Trains on the Western Pennsylvania Railroad pass to and from Tarentum, east and west, several times daily. For a map of survey of the lots apply to Hon. H. M. BRACKENRIDGE, at his residence near the Soda Works or J. N. PURVIANCE, Tarentum.

UNION REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.

FOR JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT:

HON. H. W. WILLIAMS,

Of Allegheny County.

AS WE ANTICIPATED, the report of Senator WADE's Lawrence speech has elicited considerable comment, insomuch that he has felt constrained to explain his actual meaning. He denies that he advocated an equal distribution of property, or other cognate and mischievous dogmas. This seems all the more strange, because in dealing with public questions he has always been noted for avoiding ambiguities of expression, and for saying with remarkable bluntness and force precisely what he has believed. On the labor question Mr. WADE qualified his meaning in these words:

"That system of labor which degrades the poor man and elevates the rich, which makes the rich richer and the poor poorer, which drags the very soul out of the poor man for a pitiful existence, is wrong. We must elevate the laborer, and give him a share of the proceeds of his labor. The man who successfully solves that problem will do more for the world than any man that has lived in it since the days of Christ. I believe, however, that the shadow of the great struggle is upon us, and we must meet it. There is deep discontent among the masses, and they will shortly demand that their condition may be made more comfortable, both in this country and England. There is a restlessness, a feverish excitement, a discontentedness with their lot among the poor classes that we cannot disregard. The people want more recreation—more enjoyment. They are casting about for relief from their monotonous and half-starved condition, and they will have it. Mr. Greeley is a wise man. He has done some very foolish things, but he perhaps has more knowledge on all subjects than any man in this country. I think well of his plan, and the idea of co-operation, if carried out among the working classes, will do much to ameliorate their condition."

We endorse most of this, including what is said of Mr. GREELEY. There is great discontent among laboring men, in respect to their condition; and this discontent is hopeful, provided a right direction shall be given to it. It is no hardship that any man has to work. Providence has ordained labor to be not only the means by which most people shall obtain the means of subsistence, but as a most salutary discipline to soul and body. We are not disposed to limit the meaning of labor to such exertion as is purely or mainly muscular. That work in which the largest amount of intellect is required is much more exhaustive to all faculties than that in which the mind is nearest passive. But we do not see that relief for any class of workmen can come through grumbling; and, besides, grumblers, at best, are intolerable bores. Work people who mean to better their own cases will certainly find that, however many other expedients they may try, in the end they will be compelled "to work out their own salvation." The remedy for the evils that press upon them cannot be found in any legal enactments half as much as in themselves. What laborers ought to seek first of all is not to work fewer hours, but that the hours they do work shall bear a due share of fruit for themselves. How shall this be done? We see no other way to do this except for a man to be his own employer in one form or another. It is folly to think that men will buy labor, any more than wheat or potatoes, except on terms which lead them to think they can make something handsome by the operation. When the world comes under the control of disinterested benevolence a different rule will prevail, but not till then. If a workman has the capacity, knowledge, energy, and tact to set up as a boss, nothing hinders him. Most bosses have thus risen from the ranks. But, unfortunately, a large share of workingmen are deficient in some of the qualities essential to success in this time. The fault in the niggardliness of nature, or in the lack of pains to develop and improve what Nature has bestowed. If a workman does not feel strong enough to "fight it out on that line," the co-operative system presents advantages. This is a species of partnership, in which several or many workmen combine their abilities, so as to make up for the deficiencies they may be individually conscious of. This system does not effect an equal distribution, but rewards each man in proportion to the capital he puts in, and the skill and diligence he expends. Hundreds of men are capable of becoming their own employers in this mode, for each one who will succeed under the other. As we judge, the best remedy offered as yet to workmen, is involved in this plan. In availing themselves of it there is no need for fresh legislation, or heated denunciation of those who are not disposed, for any reasons, to try it. Various experiments have been made, enough to show that there is virtue in this scheme, and to encourage other experiments on an extended scale. If workmen will not avail themselves of the opportunity thus presented, but continue to toil for wages, we do not see how they can rationally cast the blame of their case on others.

CINCINNATI is not the most temperate city in the country, but her citizens manage to consume an extraordinary quantity of "pop." The Commercial, in giving a history of the trade, says:

There are now in full operation in this city, eleven bottling establishments, giving employment to one hundred and fifteen men, and thirty-eight wagons with their horses and drivers, which turn out daily over six thousand dozen, making the imposing number of at least seventy-two thousand bottles of soda water. It is estimated by those who have given the matter some attention, that the amount of soda water consumed by draught from fountains throughout the city, will double the quantity used from bottles. This would place the whole quantity consumed daily, at considerably above two hundred thousand draughts of the gentle beverage, or nearly one to each inhabitant. When we consider that this is done at a daily expense of over fifteen thousand dollars, some idea of the proportions of the business may be reached. At the fountains, business is brisk about four months in the year; bottled soda, however, is sold largely at all times, falling off during four months to about one-third of the quantity disposed of at this season.

AN ardent young gentleman in St. Louis, created quite a sensation on Saturday, by forcibly rescuing from a brothel a fair but frail young woman to whom he was devotedly attached. After being kidnapped from vice, the girl renounced the life she was leading, and a fashionable wedding is about to take place.

THERE were sixty-one deaths in Louisville during the week ending June 29th, three of which were charged to the cholera. For the same week there were one hundred and six deaths reported in New Orleans, one of which was from cholera. In Harrisburg, Pa., there were only thirteen deaths during the full month of June.

THE captain, first clerk, and one of the owners of the steamboat F. N. Brooks have been arrested in St. Louis on a charge of conspiring to defraud creditors. It is alleged that they recently robbed the safe of $8,000 and set fire to the boat.

FOR riding in a street car in St. Louis, a respectable black man was cruelly beaten by a "gentleman of standing" and thrown out of the car. The negro's only fault was that he did not belong to the favorite race.

—In time of peace the Prussian Government prepares for war, and is continuing to convey war material to Duppel and Sonderburg to defend those important places. This proceeding shows that Prussia has no idea of giving them up to Denmark.

—The great East Indian millionaire, who, since his father's death, has been leader of his co-religionists, Mr. Rustomjee Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, and who, three years ago, was worth $10,000,000, has failed, which is bad for Mr. Rust, etc., etc., etc.

—In a report of one of the late speeches of Secretary Seward in Boston he was made to say that when the President has served four years the people "can turn him out and put in a saucepan they liked better." Sauce-pan turned out to be a misprint for "successor."

—A beautiful monument is erecting at Williamstown, Mass., on the spot where Samuel J. Mills, Jas. Richards and Harvey Loomis held those meetings for prayer which gave birth to the American Board of Foreign Missions. This work is done at the expense of Harvey Rice, of Cleveland, Ohio, who is a class-mate of President Hopkins.

—At a meeting of the Association for the Advancement of Science, held in New York on Monday night, a paper on "Lake Superior and the Surrounding Region," was read by Mr. J. Disturnell. Mr. D. thought that on one of the islands of the lake the government should erect a hospital, as the climate is so exceedingly salubrious and most efficacious in the cure of consumption.

—Tell City, a town founded not ten years ago by Swiss societies in Cincinnati, is situated on the north bank of the Ohio, in Perry county, O. It now contains 3,000 inhabitants, whose thrift is highly spoken of. It contains over thirty steam engines in its various factories. About half the population are Swiss. There are about twenty Democratic voters among the entire population.

—The length of the German railroads has increased in eight years by 42 per cent. of the original length. In this time 3,056 German miles were built. The average annual increase amounts to five per cent., but the real additional of the last year, in spite of the war, was seven per cent. In 1866 they had diminished to forty-three per cent. This is a proof that private capital can rival with the fiscus.

—It is said that during the siege of Queretaro the women of the city carried food and drink to the soldiers in the trenches, at the peril of their lives. Many thus fell victims to their conjugal devotion. One was shot through the breast by a bullet, which likewise killed the infant, strapped to her breast. A second had her head taken off by a round shot. A third was killed by a bullet in the plaza.

—A complete translation of the Old Testament has lately been made into the Maori language—a work, it is said, of great difficulty and literary interest. A translation of the Gospels and Acts has also been made into the Gneg dialect of the Skipetax or Albanian, the last being the work of the Bible Society. As the translator calls himself a native of Elbasau, it is probably rendered in that sub-dialect, there being indeed no classical dialect of Gneg.

—The gold fever is spreading through Western Texas. The San Antonio Herald hesitates to add to the sensation, but is constrained to say that there is in all probability a gold mine within a few miles of that city. A party have started for the secret auriferous region prepared for a thorough exploration. Four of the party have been on the spot before, are old "diggers" from California, and say they never saw richer prospects in the richest mine in that State.

—They have a swimming school in Philadelphia. It is described as a large hall, and a vast bath-tub. One young girl is said to have learned in six lessons enough of the art to be able to swim around the reservoir unaided. There are dressing-rooms and retiring rooms, and various simple gymnastic contrivances, which are employed in order to bring about the re-action that is so important after bathing. The hours are so arranged that young and old, male and female, novices and experts, may indulge in bathing and swimming, and all without the infraction of the rules of delicacy and propriety.

—The New Glasgow (Nova Scotia) Chronicle says that two frogs were found a few days ago deeply imbedded in the Acadia coal mine. One of them was killed, unfortunately, by the fall of the coal. They were found in a small cavity filled with water, in the centre of the coal seam, sixty feet beneath the surface. The living animal is small sized, perfectly shaped, and is quite lively, but at the same time is blind and has no mouth. When put into fresh water it becomes insensible, and the water becomes covered with slime, consequently it can only live in water taken out of the coal mine. It is at present in possession of Major Norton, American Consul at Picton.

—The frightful increase of fire-damp explosions in the collieries of late, and particularly the extensive and destructive accidents last Fall and winter in the English coal mines, have incited new research on the subject. One result has been a contrivance for so fastening, or sealing, the safety lamps given to the miners that they cannot be opened without detection, involving such penalty as will impress upon their minds—grown careless by familiarity to danger—the risks to which they put their own and other's lives. Another invention of more pretension, and perhaps of more importance, as taking one step nearer to the cause of trouble, is an apparatus for drawing out collections of fire-damp by a syphon, and still another has been invented for destroying by electricity the explosive gasses in temporarily closed portions of the mines before they are again used as workings or passages. The process is in use in the Hartz mines, and now in process of testing at the Brockmoor Colliery of England. These explosions may be generated at the most distant workings, and when made at such an interior point expel the foul gasses toward the main tunnels and ventilating shafts, so that a fresh supply of pure air will soon make that portion of the mine shaft safe to be entered. Deep mining has its drawbacks, but the very obstacles are only incentives to new endeavor, and so are not unmixed evils, though they often prove costly instructors.—N. Y. Times.

A Farmer Hangs Himself on Account of Disgrace of his Wife.

We learned from Deputy Coronor Praedicow this morning the following particulars of a lamentable suicide which occurred last Sunday, near Popstown, St. Clair county, Ill., wherein a farmer, whose name we could not learn, committed suicide by hanging:

About six weeks ago the man was married to a beautiful young country girl who resided about a mile from his premises. The wedding was celebrated with customary ceremony, and a country ball was given, which was attended generally by the young farmers in the neighborhood. On the next day the husband and wife repaired to their own farm and prepared to assume the duties of married life. It appears that it became noised in the neighborhood soon after the marriage that the young bride would soon become a mother, and the reports coming to the ear of the doting husband, he instantly communicated the same to his wife, and asked her whether or no it was correct. She immediately acknowledged her condition, and, bursting into tears, asked her husband's forgiveness. He replied not to her entreaties, but only said in an abstracted mood, "If this is the case, I will do something else." The scene occurred on Saturday. On the next morning he arose early from his bed, and securing a piece of strong rope, repaired to the woods about two miles from his farm and hanged himself to the limb of a large oak tree. On Monday afternoon, a neighbor, in searching through the woods for bean poles, found the body hanging there, and giving notice to the nearest Justice of the Peace, an inquest was held and the body buried on Tuesday last.

We are informed that the young wife is nearly distracted at the loss of her injured husband, and has expressed the determination to commit suicide herself.—St Louis Dispatch.

The King of Prussia and the Gambler.

The Flargo relates the following characteristic anecdote of the Prussian King:

"The King had forbidden the Prussian officers in garrison at Rastadt to gamble at the Baden tables, but more than one of them was often to be found in private dress among the group of players. One night a Prussian officer risked a sovereign on the rouge. He won, left the two pieces, then four, then eight, and was about to draw his sixteen savereigns when he perceived King William in front of him. What torture for a sub-lieutenant to see sixteen gold pieces before him and dare not touch them. The rouge continued to win, and the heap of gold having exceeded the maximum, the croupier cried out, 'How much on the heap?' The officer, pale and trembling, had not the courage to reply; with one eye he looked at the King, and with the other at his gold. 'How much for the heap?' again shouted the croupier. At this moment the King of Prussia came round the table, and tapping the Lieutenant on the shoulder, said to him, with the bonhommie characteristic of his Majesty, 'Come, take up your money and make yourself scarce before your superiors meet you.' It is hardly necessary to say that the officer did not want to be told twice. Some time after the King reviewed the garrison of Rastadt, and perceiving the Lieutenant, made signs for him to approach. 'Sir,' said King William, 'I caused you to lose some money the other day in interrupting your game. The rouge won three times after you left. You may draw the difference from my private exchequer, but beware that you do not commence again.'"

Straightening Leaning Trees.

No fruit tree will be so productive when the entire top and body have been blown partially over, as it will when in an erect position. When a tree leans, sprouts will almost always start from the upper side of the body, or branches, and grow perpendicularly. By this means the largest proportion of the sap flows into the erect stems, while the horizontal part of the top receives only a limited supply of nourishment.

When it is desirable to straighten up a leaning fruit tree, set a post in the ground, say twenty feet from the tree, to which a chain or rope and pulleys may be attached, and the tree straightened up and secured with a strong wire extending from a stake in the ground to a strap around the main part of the tree. In case a tree is large, and well rooted, let the earth be excavated on the upper side, and a few of the larger roots loosened, and the earth removed beneath them, so that the top of the tree may be brought up with ease to the desired position.

The guy wires will always hold trees in position, until the roots will keep the top erect. If long branches grow too erect, it is easy to wire them down to the proper position, when the wires may all be removed after one season. As a general rule, fruit trees are neglected quite too much.

PURE OLD OTARD BRANDY.

FOR MEDICINAL PURPOSES.—I am this day in receipt of fifty cases of pure Old Otard Brandy, (bottled,) a prime article, equal, if not superior, to any in the city. No family should be without this article at this season of the year.

HEAR REASON!

STRENGTHEN THE DEFENCES!

When a garrison apprehends an attack from an outside enemy, what does it do? It STRENGTHENS THE DEFENCES. The human system, at this period of the year, is beleaguered by morbid influences. The atmosphere is full of them. Every change of weather lays the feeble open to their attacks. What is to be done in order to baffle these unseen, but ever active, foes? STRENGTHEN THE DEFENCES. Do you ask how? The answer is simple—the means within the reach of all: Reinforce the vital organs and the nervous system with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. Tone the stomach, regulate the bowels, rouse the sluggish liver, cheer the spirits, enrich and purify the vital current, with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. That's the way to STRENGTHEN THE DEFENCES, and render the capital of health impregnable. If you wish to escape billious headache, intermittent fever, indigestion, and nervous visitations—to enjoy in all its plentitude, the blessing of "a sound mind in a sound body," use this incomparable preventive and restorative. It preserves health in the healthy, and renews it in the weak and ailing.

PINUS CANADENSIS.

A tree which is abundant in Canada, Nova Scotia, and the more northern parts of the New England States, and is also found in the elevated and mountainous regions of the Middle States, and abounds in medicinal virtues. Dr. Swett, of Boston, has prepared a medicine from the sweet inside bark of the pine tree, called POLAND'S WHITE PINE COMPOUND, which is one of rare value in all debilitated states of the kidneys. It acts like a charm in all diseases of mucous membranes, enabling them to regain their lost tone and energy. It will be found well adapted to all those diseases, where Buchu has been tried and failed. It is likewise well suited to chronic coughs, and an infallible specific for old and debilitated cases of asthma. Many persons who at first only took a bottle of this medicine, to try, afterwards came back and got a dozen, or half dozen, which effected radical cures of diseases of the bladder and kidney of years standing.

Diabetes, a disease that has been looked upon as among the incurables, is immediately relieved by it. Notice the certificate of Asa Goodhue, published some time ago.

The United States Dispensatory, speaking of the pine, says: "It is prescribed in leucorrhœa, gleet, and other diseases of the urinary passages; in piles and chronic inflammation or ulceration of the bowels, in chronic catarrhal affections, and in various forms of rheumatism." It is exceedingly valuable in all gravelly affections, bloody urine, and where there is red and white sediment. It can be taken without interruption to one's usual avocations; and instead of sickening, produces a bracing, healthy power of endurance and vigor. Price, $1 per bottle; six for $5.

Ask for POLAND'S WHITE PINE COMPOUND. For sale by the gross, dozen or single bottle, at DR. KEYSER'S Great Medicine Store, 140 Wood street.

THE COURTS

Court of Quarter Sessions.

This Court met Tuesday at ten o'clock, Hon. Thomas Mellon on the bench, Colonel Levi Bird Duff, District Attorney.

MULDOON–M'GOODEN CASE.

In the case of James Muldoon, indicted for felonious assault and battery in stabbing James McGooden with a knife, the jury found a verdict of not guilty of the felony charged, but guilty of the misdemeanor of unlawfully cutting, wounding, and stabbing. Sentence deferred.

PLEAD GUILTY.

Lydia Timmony, aged sixteen years, plead guilty to an indictment charging her with the larceny of clothing from Elizabeth Brady, in the Sixth ward, in February last. She was ordered to be taken to the House of Refuge.

NOBLESTOWN CASE.

Orlando Bell, tavern keeper at Noblestown, was placed on trial on two indictments charging him with selling liquor on Sunday and selling to minors. The evidence showed that minors on several occasions got liquor at the tavern, but not directly from Mr. Bell, who had repeatedly refused to sell to persons not of lawful age. One witness testified that he had a sick horse one Sunday, and procured at the defendant's tavern, on the order of a physician, a pint of whisky of which witness drank a portion, but what disposition was made of the remainder he did not explain; his horse, however, was really sick; the medical man from whom he obtained the "prescription," was the family physician, not a "horse doctor." It seemed to be conceded a case of guilt had not been made out, and there was some argument as to the question of costs, counsel for the prosecution being anxious that the defendant should be made pay them, and vice versa. Verdict not guilty, and Robert Simpson, prosecutor, to pay the costs, in both cases.

CHILDREN'S QUARREL.

John Kirsch, Jr., a lad of fourteen years, was placed on trial on two indictments for committing an assault and battery on a son and daughter of Mrs. Watkins. The parties reside in Lower St. Clair township, near Birmingham. The prosecutrix testified to the great annoyance she had experienced by the abuse her children received at the hands of the defendant. The parents of each family became involved in the quarrel, and the result was a variety of cross suits. Jury out at adjournment.

A CROSS SUIT—THE OTHER SIDE.

James McGooden was arraigned to answer an indictment for assault and battery, found on the oath of James Muldoon. Yesterday Muldoon was tried for stabbing McGooden, and convicted, and in the present case, arising out of the same transaction, Muldoon, as prosecutor, was enabled to give his version of the difficulty, his lips, in the other case, being sealed, as he was the defendant. The difficulty occurred between eleven and twelve o'clock on the night of the 22d of June, on Overhill street, in the Seventh Ward, and the combatants were alone. Muldoon testified that he met McGooden in Allegheny, came to the city, had several drinks at different places, and finally went up to the [illegible] (Seventh ward,) where an old [illegible] quarrel was revived, McGooden being anxious to fight it out. They finally "clinched," after McGooden had struck a blow, and Muldoon said he was knocked down and kicked. He then got up and defended himself as best he could, and did not remember what further took place. He went home to his boarding house, where he was arrested. On cross-examination Muldoon stated that in defending himself he used a dirk-knife, but could not say whether he cut McGooden or not. He admitted having a knife of the same description as that offered in evidence as the one with which he stabbed McGooden.

For the defense it was shown that Muldoon expressed sorrow for what had occurred, and offered to pay all expenses if the suit against him was withdrawn, and also said he had brought the cross-suit in order to get the whole matter before the jury. Alderman Butler testified that when Muldoon was brought before him, and the knife shown, he denied all knowledge of it, or of ever having had it in his possession. When on the stand Muldoon admitted having a knife, and accounted for its possession by stating that he obtained it to return to the "property man" of the Academy of Music, the knife being used on the stage.

The prosecution offered, as rebutting, evidence that McGooden's character for peace was bad. Three Allegheny police officers were called who testified that he had been twice arrested, and on one of the occasions was discharged, the complaint made not being sustained. On the other occasion he was arrested on the oath of Muldoon, two years since. Mr. Miller, for the defense, characterized the evidence of the police officers as the height of impudence. They testified defendant's character was bad, for the reason that they had arrested him, yet they admitted that upon a hearing their oaths were not sufficient to justify the Mayor in holding or fining him, and that he was discharged. The case was not concluded at adjournment.

FROM KANSAS.

Excursion Over the Union Pacific Railway, E. D.

[Special Correspondence Pittsburgh Gazette.]

LAWRENCE, June 21, 1867.

TREES IN KANSAS.

In the greater part of this State, except along the margins of the water courses, there is very little timber; but along the streams it grows with great luxuriance. The main part is cotton wood, a variety of poplar, and perhaps one of the poorest varieties. The tree often grows to a large size, and is much used for the manufacture of rough lumber, such as joists, rafters, scantling, fencing boards, and often it is used for partitions and even siding and floors in the rougher and cheaper kinds of houses. It is almost impossible to plane it. In fact nothing but the axe and saw can work it up. The trunks of the trees are generally cut into saw logs and the branches into cord wood. It is rarely split, for the woody fibre is interlaid almost as much as gum, and is nearly as tough as the fibre of hemp. It is not often that a piece long enough for a common saw log can be obtained without more or less crooks in it. There are many saw mills, all of which use the circular saw exclusively. Sometimes two saws are used, so that when large logs are operated upon the upper one cuts what the lower one cannot reach. Cottonwood is wholly unfit for posts, railroad ties, or any use which brings it in contact with the soil, as it quickly rots in such situations; but if kept dry it is for many purposes a strong useful wood. Cottonwood boards make pretty good fences; but their tendency to warp often causes them to break the nails.

The cottonwood is of very rapid growth. It is often planted for purposes of shade and ornament. The denseness and deep shining green of its foliage make it one of the most beautiful trees, when standing out in open places, I ever saw. Early in June it ripens its seed, which are quite small, and each seed is winged with a small tuft of downy fibre like cotton, which bears it for miles on the wind. Hence the name cottonwood.

Next to the cottonwood the black walnut is the important timber of this country, and is probably next to it in abundance. It is used for everything from furniture to fence rails. It grows large and quite as straight as in the eastern States. It is found most plentiful in the neighborhood of the larger streams.

The oak, in its several varieties, is found here; but although I have seen a few fine specimens, it has not done well as a natural production. But the trouble was that in the only places where it could flourish—the high open ground—no trees could get in for the prairie fires. As a cultivated tree the oak will do well here.

I have seen some hickory down near the Missouri, and some ash. Away out on the plains, far beyond Fort Harker, the ash grows large and straight, and is a valuable tree. There are no chestnuts.

Wild fruit trees are very abundant, especially plums, haws, pawpaws, goose berries and wild grapes. Beyond Salina, far out in the Buffalo grass region, the plums are said to be very fine. I saw some of these native plums in the garden of Judge Smith of this city, which were very beautiful both as trees and fruit. The plums hang in clusters like large, open bunches of grapes. He said they are very good when ripe.

I have never seen apple trees and peach trees flourish as they do here, and this year the fruit crop is abundant in proportion to the number of trees. There are not as many fruit trees as there ought to be. I m told that in the early settlement of the State it was given out as a settled fact that fruit would not succeed in Kansas. Probably the thing was said more to justify the improvidence and neglect than anything else; but it seems that the croakers had it their own way for a time, and the introduction of fine fruit was retarded. Now, however, the tide appears to have turned the other way, as numerous flourishing young orchards attest.

Grapes do admirably here. I met a Mr. Burns at Manhattan, twenty miles east of Fort Riley, who is well known in Pittsburgh. He has located himself a few miles distant from that beautiful town, and devoted his time, his labor and talent exclusively to the culture of the vine. He has many varieties, all of which do well. As he is a literary man, his publications on that subject are valuable, and his labors will doubtless result ere long in clothing many of these beautiful slopes in vineyards. I measured a grape leaf in Judge Smith's garden. It was 12½ inches wide, and 12 from head to point.

The locust grows here with great vigor, but the borer is severe upon them. I think crude petroleum, applied to the bole and larger branches would cure this evil. It that pest could be overcome, millions of these valuable trees might be reared at a trifling expense of land and labor. Indeed, the land would be the better for their presence. Growing as they do here, they are very beautiful.

But of all the cultivated trees I have seen in this State, the soft maple is the most luxuriant and the most beautiful. They are planted by thousands in both town and country.

Osage orange hedges abound, and are in the highest degree successful. Judge Bailey, of the Supreme Court, who is himself a farmer, told me yesterday that they can be made at an expense of less than fifty cents a perch. In about four years they are sufficiently grown to be a protection against animals. In the meantime, a fence of some other kind is required. Animals do not, or, rather, cannot eat the orange. Its strong, sharp thorns protect it.

I have never seen in Kansas a tree that had been uprooted by the wind. I mentioned this to one of the oldest citizens, and he said that, although he had never thought of it before, he was unable to call to mind a single instance in which he had seen a tree that had been blown "out of root." The reason of this is quite obvious. The soil is so deep that trees of all kinds strike their roots so far down that it is impossible for any amount of force that the tree could bear to heave up the huge mass of soil which they embrace. But neither have I in a single instance seen a tree which had been broken by the wind. This may be accounted for from the fact that the trees of this country having to withstand a strong breeze almost every day, grow more sturdy than they do with us; and hence even a gale or a hurricane cannot break them. Young fruit trees require to be securely staked till they are well rooted. After that they appear to stand up as well, and are as symmetrical as I ever saw trees anywhere. Peach trees form their heads more beautifully in Kansas than in any part of the eastern States that I have visited, and this year the crop is very abundant. Most of the early settlers were negligent in this matter, so that at this time the market is not one quarter supplied, and men could do well to go largely into the business yet.

Mr. Burns, who probably knows more about the matter than any other now in Kansas, assured me confidently that in no part of the United States except Southern California did the vine grow so well and bear its fruit so abundantly and surely as in Kansas. And he gave a reason for it. The abundant rains of April, May and part of June gave them a fine start; then the warm, dry and pure atmosphere of the subsequent months secured the ripening of the grapes both richly and soundly. When the rich flats of the valley of the Kansas shall be a succession of farms, the fields enclosed with stone walls or hedges as the proprietors please, and its bluffs of every imaginable form of grace and beauty shall be clad in vines, as they will be, it will probably be the most enchanting valley on this planet. For more than two hundred miles the Union Pacific Railway passes through the midst of this paradisical scene, which hardly for a moment is hid from view in all its amplitude and grandeur. Why, it will be worth a journey from Pennsylvania just to see it.

The cedar grows well here. In the valleys beyond Fort Harker it is indigenous and in places abundant. The black walnut abounds from the mouth of the Kansas as far as I can hear anything about. Every farmer knows what kind of soil that indicates.

From my own observation, and from conversations with others, I am [illegible] that the only thing that [illegible] prevented these vast prairies from being wooded are the annual fires that sweep through the dry grass. Where they have been stopped even for a year or two, young trees spring up spontaneously. This I have seen in many places; and hence I believe that in twenty years there will be far more wood here than there is now. But it is not as scarce now as many people suppose. The other day I went to visit a woolen factory in this city—of which I shall have something to say in another place. The proprietor with whom I rode pointed out a range of several hundred cords of good wood, which he told me he laid in last winter at four dollars a cord. One fact like this is worth more than a page of abstract terms expressive of abundance or scarcity.

In some places I observed that sumach was springing up and overspreading the ground with great rapidity. To the mere farmer this is a pest; but the richness of this shrub in the tannin principle may render it a source of wealth.

So much for the trees and fruits and the shrubs of this extraordinary State. I shall I know be pardoned for dwelling so long upon them; for to the practical man who may have thoughts of emigrating, nothing can be more interesting.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

☞ HELMBOLD'S

Concentrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla

Eradicates ERUPTIVE and ULCERATIVE DISEASES of the THROAT, NOSE, EYES, EYELIDS, SCALP and SKIN,

Which so disfigure the appearance, PURGING the evil effects of mercury and removing all taints, the remnants of DISEASES, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by ADULTS and CHILDREN with perfect safety.

TWO TABLE SPOONFULS of the Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

AN INTERESTING LETTER is published in the Medico-Chirurgical Review, on the subject of the Extract of Sarsaparilla in certain affections, by Benjamin Travers, F. R. S., &c. Speaking of those diseases, and diseases arising from the excess of mercury, he states that no remedy is equal to the Extract of Sarsaparilla; its power is extraordinary, more so than any other drug I am acquainted with. It is, in the strictest sense, a tonic with this invaluable attribute, that it is applicable to a state of the system so sunken, and yet so irritable as renders other substances of the tonic class unavailable or injurious.

Established upwards of 18 years. Prepared by —The Chicago Tribune, of Monday, says: The money market was quite stringent to-day but as borrowers fully understood the situation, they refrained from making any applications. The preparations for the July statement were fully completed to-day, and on Monday we may look for an easier market. Checking by country banks was light.

The mercantile trade of the city continues very quiet, and the little activity displayed is confined to seasonable goods. The wheat crop is progressing finely, and harvesting will commence in this latitude in about two weeks. The corn and oats prospects are less brilliant in some sections, but we are still of the opinion that there will be a good average crop of both cereals. The fruit crop promises unusually large.

The failure of S. D. Clarke, a heavy lumber dealer and vessel owner, was announced to-day. The liabilities are placed at over $75,000, but it is thought that the assets, if properly managed, will ultimately pay off all indebtedness. Mr Clarke's suspension is due to the great fall in lumber and square timber within the past few weeks—the latter—his speciality—being almost unsaleable.

—The New York Tribune, of Monday, says: The money market is freely supplied on call at low rates, and for the speculation of the street capital is as abundant as when the Treasury was issuing legal tender without stint. This state of things proceeds from two causes. In the first place, prices of all commodities are so much reduced that upon existing bank credits and currency movements are as when the short National debt payable in legal tender was at its maximum. The season of the year also favors abundant money on call, and this advantage will remain to borrowers until the crops commence to move to market. As there is nothing of consequence of the old crop to move, the demand for capital will not be active enough to disturb the general money market until the usual summer holidays have substantially passed. As the money market now appears there is reason to anticipate rampant speculations in Wall street, followed by the usual reaction. Many stocks have already realized all the advance the movement of a full crop should secure to them, and few of them can be called cheap as compared with solid investments in National or State stocks.

—The following, in regard to the coming crops, we clip from the Cincinnati Gazette, of Monday:

The weather continues very favorable for maturing the wheat crop, and the latter may now be considered out of the woods. In regard to the yield it may be said that it will turn out large per acre, but not so heavy in the aggregate, as many suppose. It is well settled that the number of acres sown last fall was smaller than usual, owing to the wet weather in September and October, the high price of seed and the general discouragement under which famers labored in consequence of previous failures. This applies, of course, to winter wheat, only. In view, therefore, of the fact that the supply of wheat in the country has been almost exhausted, and that it will require a very large proportion of the crop of 1867 to fill the vaccum in stocks usually carried, people, if they desire not to be disappointed, should not calculate upon "large crop prices" for breadstuffs. Consumers will, of course, be relieved of a large portion of the burthen consequent upon famine prices, recently experienced, but ante-war prices are not to be expected until two more full crops are realized. It may be that a rush of wheat to market, immediately upon the close of harvest, may cause a panic in prices, which will prove a harvest to speculators. Farmers should guard against this. It is probable wheat will be lower within the next sixty days than at any subsequent time in this year. Consumers are, of course, interested in low priced flour; but if the supply is not in the country, low prices cannot be maintained, and it is therefore better for the general interests that farmers should receive for wheat its full value, the latter to be determined by supply and demand. The idea that there is an antagonism between farmers and consumers is erroneous. The whole interests of the country are linked together, and there can be no real antagonism. It is always found that when farmers prosper other industrial interests prosper, and vice versa. The failure of the crops of late years, and the consequent scarcity of money in the country, is the chief cause of the prevailing stagnation in manufacturing and mercantile pursuits. Give the farmers good crops, and such prices as may be justified by supply and demand, and the industry of the cities will soon respond to the changed condition of the agricultural classes. What we desire to guard against is a false cry of immense crops, which is not justified by the facts that may force prices far below their natural level, thus enabling a comparatively few operators to accumulate large stocks, which having bought from producers at low prices they would sell to consumers at high prices. The true policy for farmers, therefore, is to market their wheat gradually, so as to meet the consumptive demand. In this way a fair average price will be realized for the aggregate crop and producers and consumers will be equally benefitted.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, July 2, 1866.

The general markets continue dull, though in the aggregate, there is a fair volume of business, but, as has been the case for some time past, the transactions are mainly of an unimportant character, the demand for all of the leading commodities being restricted to supplying immediate wants. In prices, there are no material changes, though the tendency, especially for flour, is downward.

GRAIN—Wheat is quiet, and there is no stock in this market. Oats steady but unchanged—sale of 67 sacks at 67c, and small sales in store at 68@70c. Rye is dull and nominal at $1,20@1,25. Corn is quiet and we quote in the absence of sales at 88@90c for prime Yellow. Barley is nominal at $1@1,10 for good to prime Spring.

FLOUR—There is no improvement to note in the demand, and while the market is dull and weak, prices are without quotable change. We continue to quote at at $11@12 for Spring Wheat; $12,75@13,25 for Winter Wheat, and $16,75 to $17,50 for fancy brands. Rye Flour is quoted at $8@8,25.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is quiet but steady, with regular jobbing sales at 9½c for Shoulders; 11½c@12½c for Ribbed and Clear Sides, and 17c for Sugar Cured (canvassed) Hams. Sale of 1000 lbs country Clear Sides at 10. Lard is dull; prime kettle may be quoted at 12¼@12½. Dried Beef, 23¼. Not enough doing in Mess Pork to establish quotations.

MILL FEED—Is scarce but the demand is only moderate. Sales in lots of 10 tons Middlings at $2,25@2,30.

HAY—Is dull and, if anything, a fraction lower; we now quote from wagon at $17 to $20 per ton.

POTATOES—There is a fair local demand, and we can report regular sales of prime Peach Blows in store at $1,20 per bushel. New Potatoes may be quoted firm at $8 per bbl.

EGGS—Dull but unchanged—fresh packed may be quoted at 18c.

BUTTER—Prime fresh Butter is in fair demand with small sales at 15@17c. Common continues very dull.

CHEESE—Is steady, with regular sales at 13@15c, according to quality.

DRIED FRUIT—Continues very dull; small sales at 5½@6c for Apples, and 8@12c for Peaches.

OIL—Lard Oil is still quoted by manufacturers at 80@82c for No. 2, and $1,03@1,05 for No. 1.

GREEN APPLES—Scarce and in demand; may be quoted at $7 to $8 per bbl.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, July 2, 1867.

CRUDE—The market was very stiff and somewhat excited to-day, and as a consequence, we have but few operations to report, buyers and sellers being apart in their views and feelings. Holders are persistent in the determination to establish an advance, and buyers are willing to pay an advance over the rates current last week, but they are not, as a general thing, willing to give the figures now asked. We can report a sale of 2000 bbls, in tank, at 6⅛, and 1500 bbls, to be delivered on first water, at 7c, the buyer advancing $1 per bbl. The first named sale cannot be taken as a criterion of the market for spot oil, owing to particular circumstances, and it is said that it will cost 7c by the time it is delivered. For all 1868, buyer's option, an advance could doubtless be realized over the price current for several weeks past, 12½—it is probable that 12¾ or even 13c could be obtained. For all 1867, buyer's option, there was a sale this week at 8, but it could hardly be duplicated now, and, indeed, for all future deliveries, sellers do not seem disposed to name figures.

REFINED—The market for bonded oil was greatly excited, and while it was alleged that there is no legitimate foundation for it, it was excited notwithstanding, and for present deliveries, prices are higher. We can report sales of 1000 barrels for July, seller's option, at 25½c, delivered in Philadelphia; 1000 for August, at 26c; 5000 bbls, 1000 each month from July to December, at 26c; 1000 for all 1867, buyer's option, at 27c, and 1000, in two lots of 500 each, for July, at 20c, free on board cars here. Sales for July, compared with the early part of last week, show an advance of from 2@3c, and there is about the same difference in spot oil; and, while the present "flurt" is looked upon with great suspicion, especially by "short" sellers, there is no disputing the fact that the market is better; but how long it will remain so, or whether or not it will still further improve, time alone will develop. The Antwerp market has still further advanced, being quoted to-day at 41 francs.

ALLEGHENY CATTLE MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, TUESDAY, July 2, 1867.

CATTLE.

The receipts of cattle were unusually large this week, reaching about nine hundred head in the aggregate, and with no corresponding improvement in the demand, the market was a very hard one for drovers, and compared with last week, prices have still further declined. The best retailing cattle sold at from 8 to 8½, some few extra at 8¾; medium at 7 to 7½, and inferior to common at 4 to 6c. There were more common and inferior cattle on sale this week than there has been for some time past, and this, as a matter of course, had a tendency to depress the market for good cattle, and put down prices. The demand for shipment was only moderate, while butchers, as has been the case for some time past, bought sparingly, and at lower prices than last week.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

There was an unusually large number of Sheep on sale this week, but with a slight improvement in the demand, prices were pretty well maintained, though the tendency continues downward. We quote at 4½ to 6c, gross, for fair to prime fat mutton Sheep. Qviatt sold Crum & Co. 100 head, averaging 88½ lbs, at 5; and Simmers sold Aull & Co. 81 head, weighing 7145 lbs, at 5. Lambs in good supply and dull but without quotable change, ranging from $2,50 to $3,50 per head.

HOGS.

Continue very dull at these yards, though prices remain unchanged. Emerick & Co. report having retailed about 60 head at 6½ to 7c, for good to prime heavy averages.

REPORTED SALES OF CATTLE.

Glass & Lafferty, 20 head scalawags, at 4½ to 5¼; 20 head mixed cattle at 5 to 6½; 18 head of extra splayed heifers at 8 to 8¾—16 head left over. L. Shamberg sold 12 head on commission, at 5¾ to 7½; and bought 18 head, in lots, at 5 to 6½c. Myers & Needy wholesaled 30 head of prime fat cattle to Greenwald & Kahn at 8,15; and retailed 55 head at 6 to 8¼. Greenwald & Kahn retailed 62 head at 6,50 to 8,75. P. Hartman, 20 head at 6½ to 8½. Funk sold Verner 18 head good steers at 8¼; and latter retailed 18 head for the former, at 6¼ to 8. Chas. Shomaker sold 18 head of fair Ohio steers to Hazlewood & Co. at 7¼. Stern sold two car loads of good Kentucky cattle to Marks & Traurman, at 7½; and 1 car prime ditto to Greenwald & Kahn at 7¾. M. Albert sold Verner 1 car load of 1125 steers at 6¾. RIVER NEWS.

There is nothing doing at the landing, and until there is a rise, navigation may be considered at an end. The river continues to fall slowly, and it is now so low that it is hardly worth while taking the stage of water.

The Yorktown arrived at St. Louis on Sunday last from Fort Benton, and the Ezra Porter, en route from Cincinnati to New Orleans, was at Cairo the same day. The Importer, en route from St. Louis to Pittsburgh, was sticking at Buffington at last accounts.

The New Orleans Crescent, of Thursday, says: "The renowned St. Louis low pressure packet, Great Republic, Capt. Wm. B. Donaldson, arrived with a good trip. Part of her cargo was 204 bales of cotton and 105 hhds tobacco."

One of our most prominent citizens, says the St. Louis Democrat, has suggested to us that it would be eminently just and proper for our citizens to present the victorious and magnificent steamer Ruth with a testimonial in reward for her admirable exploit in outrunning the swift steamer Richmond, and making a very remarkable fast trip from New Orleans to St. Louis. No one will question the propriety of such a presentation. The merchant we refer to, we know, reflects the feelings of his associates and community at large.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says: The Anna White, a St. Louis boat which arrived here Thursday with a cargo of shells and other Government freight, departed for Parkersburg, not choosing to risk the chances of low water, is engaged in reshipping her freight by rail. She is lying at the foot of Race street. When her cargo is all discharged she will enter into competition with the New York for St. Louis freight, which may tend to lessen the rates at present prevailing, although they are not sufficiently high now to make steamboating to that point a profitable business.

The Evansville Sun of Friday says: Capt. Lancaster's steamer Advance, which was sunk near Terre Haute some weeks ago, arrived at our wharf yesterday evening, all right again.

The Cairo Democrat of Friday says: Our old friend, Capt. Harry McQuinn, long known as a popular steamboat commander, has retired in disgust from the "played out" river, and settled in Cape Girardeau, where he will, on July 1, open a new house called the "Marble City Hotel."

At last, says Thursday's Dubuque Herald, the freshet has reached the turning point, and up to last evening the water had receded two inches, which affords some relief to those persons who have for weeks been fearing an inundation.

The Charleston, says Thursday's Louisville Journal, arrived here yesterday, and put off a quantity of freight under protest. She met the Carondolet and Sam Gaty in the Mississippi river, and passed between them. The waves from the steamers dashed over the barges of the Charleston, which were deeply loaded, causing them to ship water. It is not known whether the hemp is much damaged.

H. Alseay propounds: Wherein does the scriptural Boaz differ from a magnificent, swift low pressure steamboat? Boaz and Ruth journeyed together, and the other and Ruth didn't.

The Argonaut No. 2, which boat has just entered the trade between Louisville and Columbus, is not meeting with much success.

The Doubloon was destroyed by fire on Sunday last, at the lake end of the New Basin, New Orleans. The fire broke out in the after part of the boat, which was enveloped in smoke for some time previous to the flame breaking out. In a few moments the upper works and hull were destroyed. The Doubloon was an old boat, and before the war ran in the Red river trade. She has recently been plying in the Alabama river. She was owned by Mr. W. G. Mitchell, valued at $15,000, and was insured for $12,000. No lives were lost. The small steamer Alexandrie struck a snag in Carondelet Canal, opposite the foot of First street, in New Orleans, on Sunday, and sunk. She was insured, we believe, and was valued at about $7,000. Her cargo consisted of shingles and pickets. She will be raised.

The Cincinnati Gazette says: The Spray, which left this port the other day, got rocked—not in the cradle of the deep—but on the Falls, where she stuck for four hours. She effected a release after considerable trouble, and when last seen was making a river bee-line for Evansville and beyond.

The Memphis Avalanche, of the 28th, says: Mr. Chas. Diamond, a well-known citizen of New Orleans, died a few days ago. In early life he was a warrior. Mr. Diamond always manifested a deep interest in the progress of naval architecture, and was himself an inventor. Twenty-five years ago he submitted to the Federal Government a plan of a ram, which, at the time, was thought useless or impracticable, but his model was the same as that of the Manassas, the first vessel of the kind that ever sought an encounter with an enemy, and the partial success of which was the basis of all the efforts since being made by the Government to provide themselves with such terribly destructive vessels. If we are not in error, he also presented to the Confederate Government, during the blockade of New Orleans, an improvement on his original plan—an improvement which suggested, in some measure, the building of the great ram Mississippi, which was burned and sunk on the approach of the Federal fleet to the city.

United States Marshal Spooner seized the John D. Porter, at Evansville, Friday, for violating the law regulating steamboats. She paid one hundred dollars fine and was released.

The Dubuque Herald of Saturday says: The great event of the season to river men was the race between the Sucker State and the Phil. Sheridan, both of which left St. Louis together Wednesday afternoon, and kept along together up to Davenport, where the Sheridan was left. The Sucker State came in at noon yesterday, with brooms all over her, denoting that a victory had been won, and made the quickest time on record from St. Louis—forty-four hours and five minutes, and put out quickly intending to overtake the Key City at Prairie du Chien and beat her to St. Paul. She passed the Hawkeye coming up, which boat left St. Louis the day before. The Sheridan arrived last evening about eight o'clock, just eight hours behind the Sucker State. The "race horse" has been shorn of her laurels, and is no match for her victorious rival.
